Goal-1: Quizzes are fun.

Learning Objectives: Simple as that – they are fun. We all know that if learning is fun, welearn better.

For teachers, a quiz can be a few minutes of relaxation from our hours of marking. So, if we enjoy it, why wouldn't the kids we teach also welcome a little bit of relaxing fun whilst working?

Goal-2: Quizzes raise confidence.

Learning Objectives: An individual quiz takes off the pressure that a 'test' can bring and enables children to make mistakes privately. Even if used in teams or pairs, the nature of a fun quiz can also help those children less confident to make mistakes, especially if the quiz allows them to try again.

Goal-3: Quizzes for children can aid planning and identify progress.

Learning Objectives: Whether the quiz is a pre-topic assessment or at a midway point, it can really help you see what pupils already know or have learned.

In this way, a quiz will inform your next steps of planning on an individual basis. In fact, quizzes are also a great way to reinforce learning for pupils throughout a unit of work.

Goal-4: Quizzes can support individualized learning.

Learning Objectives: Quizzes are easy to differentiate, whilst enabling all children to participate in the same task.

For example, you can apply the same design to a quiz and learning materials, but with different questions. This is a subtle form of differentiation.

It can also help you provide just the right level of challenge and pinpoint how to support each pupil to reach their full potential.

Goal-5: Quizzes are good for revision.

Learning Objective: A quiz is a good way for a pupil to identify and take ownership of their knowledge gaps. It's also a great way to help them to plug the gaps to boost their confidence when it comes to formal testing.
